KATIE HONAN

WRITER & LEAD ARTIST

Katie is a multidisciplinary artist from Waterford, Ireland. She has worked professionally in the theatre industry for over ten years. As a maker, her focus is to craft stories exploring psychological and neurological themes, using distinct physicality. She plays with a strong sense of place in her scripts, along with striking imagery and dark humour.

In 2021, she received a Playwright & Producer Grant from Waterford City & County Council to develop her debut play How To Fall Flat On Your Face. Supported by an Arts Council Project Award, the play premiered on International Women's Day in Garter Lane Arts Centre (2022) and returned to Project Arts Centre (2023).

Katie's radio play HURL was an award winner in the RTÉ Radio 1, PJ O'Connor Radio Drama Awards. HURL is a comedy drama centred around Waterford hurling — produced and aired by RTÉ (2023).

She was awarded an Arts Council Project Award (2023), to write and develop a new one-man play inspired by Lord of the Flies — under the mentorship of Micheal West. She completed residencies in the Tyrone Guthrie Centre and 'A Little Room' Waterford's Theatre Development Centre working with Laura Honan (Dramaturge), Colin Campbell (Actor) and Rachel Ní Bhraonáin (Movement Director).

In 2024, Katie was awarded an Arts Council Bursary Award to develop her movement practice as a theatre maker, through the lens of neuroscience — collaborating with Sue Mythen, Megan Kennedy and Louise Lowe. Supported by the South East Technology University, Katie directed and shot a new short movement film at the SETU Arena (premiered at the London International Screen Dance Festival 2025).

In 2025, Katie was a 'Six in the Attic' Artist with Irish Theatre Institute. She shot her new short film 'Swinging June' exploring how dance can enhance the movement of people living with Parkinson's (WCCC Screenwriter and Producer Award) — engagement with the Waterford Association of Parkinson's Ireland, Move4Parkinson's and Trinity Laban. And took residency in Dublin Theatre Festival's Slingshot with her new play 'The Far Away Sun', experimenting with binaural technology in collaboration with Carl Kennedy (Sound Designer) and co-directing with Luke Kernaghan (Director).

'The Far Away Sun' has now been awarded an Arts Council Project Award to premiere in 2026.
